BURGARS TEASE KEYSTONERS.

A few of the Democratic campaign leaders and Senator Beckham's friends are just realizing the turn of sentiment against his candidacy and are trying to stem that tide. In canvassing the situation they have discovered that from all parts of Kentucky comes the word that many true and tried voters of the Democratic party will not support Beckham in November. Early last spring a movement was started to reorganize the Democratic party and to the governing committees it was suggested from different parts that steps then be taken to eliminate Senator Beckham from the campaign this year. This advice was disregarded and now it is realized, when too late, that Beckham will not receive the support of a city Democracy. These same gentlemen are now trying to explain that Senator Beckham didn't really mean it when he voted against the resolution of sympathy for Ireland, but the explanation is very weak. Perhaps the attempt will be made to explain now why Beckham and his man Haly shoved prohibition into every Democratic primary and convention, their act causing dissension and breaches that have never been healed. Trayal Beckham, and Haly are not flaunting their prohibition views as of old and their opponents will have an inning in November. Without Beckham Gov. Cox would have swept Kentucky by a landslide majority, but handicapped as he is our Presidential nominee faces a hard task. It is rumored that Bingham and his aide Wallace Hughes, of the Courier-Journal, are now at Republican Boss Hert's summer home, possibly seeking inspiration to aid their friend Beckham's campaign. Once again Col. Petty and Paul Burlingame step forward to explain just why the police and firemen violated the city charter by selling tickets for a so-called ball game between the Keystone police and the "chick" firemen. The tickets bore the official stamp of "Lud Petty" on the back, but both of the above gentlemen just pooh poohed the idea of having to explain a little thing like violating the city charter. "It was just a little humor and joke all around," they said, presumably meaning the joke was on the taxpayers who do not like the city charter to be considered a mere scrap of paper. Here again the players showing that they were a little green at the pastime and would have been more adept at the good old country game of town ball. However, the Keystone men are true to form. They never got as far as second base, which is known as the Keystone sack, and they allowed their opponents to perform like our burglars, as they were stealing (bases) all afternoon. About 500 of the colored Republicans were in the grand stand, the West Walnut and West Chestnut street gambling and chicken loving contingent being predominant. Speaking of the colored element, the Hert-Searcy-Chilton machine seems to be in for right smart trouble since suffrage was granted the women. The colored paper here tells how the G. O. P. has negro women canvassing all of the negro sections to round up the women to vote the Republican ticket this fall. Republican Boss Searcy in an interview says that he is well pleased over the fact that women have been given the right to vote, but Ches' friends ought to tip him off as to what happened to old Annanias for carelessly dangling with the trick. The Republican machine for years has rounded up the negro men voters in the highways and byways at registration and election, certain Republican workers being forced to mingle pretty close with the colored Republicans in campaign times. It has been no strange sight to see these Republican officials of the police and fire departments and employees of the Board of Works coming through the alleys arm in arm with the colored voters, who were rounded up with the aid of the colored gamblers and went-work-negros. This fall we will see the same Republican workers walking arm in arm with the colored cooks, washwomen and other dusky belles. And Ches Searcy says he is pleased. The negro voter is rapidly coming into his own in the Republican party in this State. Hert's Governor being forced to appoint many negroes to State jobs this year, while a hero in Jefferson county the negroes state that, having 60 per cent. of the Republican vote, they must have more power and prestige. Baxter Square, one of our central playgrounds, has been given over to their outright, and in answer to the increasing demands of the negroes for more rights "Mr. Chesley," the Republican boss, has nominated them Shawnee Park for their own if the local ticket is successful next year. Recently the Republican machine announced a picnic to be given Thursday, August 13, and to get rid of the persistent negro Republicans it was decided to give the Republican family picnic at Fontaine Ferry Park, WHERE NEGROES WERE BARRED. The negro leaders called the hand of the Hert-Searcy-Chilton machine mighty quick though about trying to shake them and to appease their wrath the Louisville Herald, the machine organ, announced a picnic for the colored people only at Fern Creek Fair, on August 20, the day following. Despite the attempt of the Chesley Club and Republican leaders to seclude themselves many of their colored Republican brothers from the baptizing preacher to the Walnut street craps-shooter applied for admission at Fontaine Ferry Park Thursday only to be given the cold shoulder. The negroes are vowing vengeance for the snub, and yet Ches Searcy tells the reporters he is pleased because many colored women will get to vote now. Looks like they are "kidding" our near Mayor out West where he went on a trip. One Colorado paper quotes him as being in favor of the League of Nations, and what Tobe Hert and the boys will do to him for that break will be a plenty. Another paper says he took part in many industrial problems during the war and was instrumental in establishing waterways in Illinois, Kentucky and Ohio. It's a good thing they didn't ask Smithy where some of those waterways were that he established, but they might embarrass our near Mayor if he was here. Of course acting Mayor Joe Kirwan, Chief Petty, Paul Burlingame, Lewis Johnson and Joe Selligman of the Board of Safety may know it, but they are not on record as being opposed to political assessments. In case you run across any of the above gentlemen tip them off that the Hert-Searcy-Chilton machine is nailing the police and firemen for $6.25 each month for four straight months. Maybe they would kick—yes maybe.

The fashionable burglars were busy this past week. We call them the fashionable burglars as they just operate on Fourth avenue. Recently they robbed the Bellum Music Company and the following night broke into the store next door. Later the Fourth avenue burglars broke into the Taylor drug store on Fourth avenue, and cleaned out the safe. This past week the burglars alarms at Lemon's jewelry store, Vic Lynch's store and Wolf's corset shop were turned in several times, the Keystone men making a run, but no clue was discovered. It is believed that these bad crooks are playing "I spy" with our country cops and are going to make a haul when the Keystone men are away from base. On one call lately the Keystone men came back to the station house and reported that while they were investigating some malevolent persons kept throwing rocks at them in the dark. Now, isn't that a shame! These bad burglars, not satisfied with their profitable hauls, are now annoying and teasing our innocent Keystone men. By the way, the "chick" firemen started a little one act reel this week. In going to a fire the engine started spluttering and threatened to blow up, all of the boys jumping and running madly for cover. Sounds like a movie picture doesn't it. Some one finally discovered that there was no water in the boiler. Yes, the fire kept on burning while the comedy was being staged. Have you noticed how the Keystone men are developing into regular ladies men? It's no uncommon sight to see these ex-street car boys strutting through the streets with a girl or two on the arm, and just the other day two of them in uniform were seen escorting two dainty blondes of the Louisville chorus to Jefferson. One of the Keystone men was just full of talk, too! He was telling the wise chorus girl that he believed "that he had seen her before down at the o'ry house at his home town" and that on "them town o'ry house used to have some crackin' fire" good shows that, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" having drawn such crowds that extra seats had to be loaned from Zeke Tucker's place. Yes sir, Col. Petty's Keystone police may not catch burglars, but they are acquiring town ways fast when they will tote the chorus girls around. "Gee if the folks back home could just have seen him spoofing (?) this wise chorus girl."

toons as more vicious than any he had ever before seen. Many were heard to express surprise and disgust with the policy of the Bingham press and say it was more British than American. Rev. Father Walsh made a powerful talk and in reviewing the history and services of the Irish in this country made it clear that a great debt was owed to that long and unjustly oppressed nation. All should honor and glory the American flag, he said, and the Government that had been the friend and supporter of the many small countries on this continent. Ireland's cause he declared a holy cause and one that should triumph. In concluding he invited the friends of Irish Freedom to hold their next meeting at Sacred Heart Hall on September 7, when they would receive a cordial welcome. The excellent social and musical programme was rendered by Misses Eldred Grebe and Bernice Lake and James Curran.

TAKES EDITORIAL CHAIR.
His legion of Louisville friends and admirers, and especially those of St. Louis Bertrand parish, will rejoice over the promotion and recognition given Very Rev. M. J. Ripple, O. P. F. G., regret the severance of the close and always pleasant relations that have existed for years between them and this most successful missionary priest. Father Ripple, for the past six years Superior of the Louisville Friends, president of the Louisville Friends, and president of the Holy Name Society and editor of the Holy Name Journal, left Sunday for New York City to at once enter upon his new duties. A quiet, unassuming, peerless, with gentle eyes and long white beard, is an Irishman from the banks of the Shannon, where at the age of sixteen, fifty-four years ago, he succeeded to his grandfather's title. He was then a schoolboy at Harrow. On the outbreak of the World War he attained his majority he went to live at Foyne's, the family estate of about 7,000 acres in the County of Limerick. To a young man brought up in the aristocratic atmosphere of a great English public school the responsibility of governing the lives and fortunes of hundreds of peasants was almost staggering. But boy as he was, he immediately took his position seriously and proceeded to make good his obligations. This meant that he immediately he was called upon to choose between his own family fortune and the future and well-being of his tenants. Those were the days of the land trouble in Ireland and it is significant that the young peer was the first to support Gladstone's land acts of 1886. He supported and put them into immediate practice, with the result that he gave 4,000 acres to his tenants at once; this was presently followed by the sale of all his farm lands in small holdings to peasant farmers on terms exceedingly advantageous to them. But Lord Montagu did not, as many other Irish landlords, turn his property into cash in order to come and live in England, leaving the peasants to their fate. He retained possession of his villages only and settled down in his family home at Foyne to devote his life to his country and his people. Lord Montagu was not a Home Ruler in those days; he believed that Irish farmers would want nothing more if they were given the land. He was the first and the most enthusiastic supporter of the Irish Agricultural Organization Society which introduced the co-operative system of farming into Ireland. It was in the dining room at Mount Trevellick, Foyne, that his old friend and schoolmate, Horace Plunkett, the only one among all the companions of his youth who now, had sympathy with his schemes, put the idea of a

WIFE WAS ARDENT HOME RULER

Looking round the House of Lords, Thomas Spring-Rice, the Second Baron Montagu of Brandon, the peer who introduced the Dominion of Ireland bill in that House, is the last man you would have picked out in that assembly of hereditary aristocrats to produce a document to contain "a government—one which contains 'more statesmanship, more democracy, more self-determination and more horse sense than any home rule bill which has ever been presented to the British Parliament.'" As Sir Horace Plunkett put it: Lord Montagu, "a quiet, unassuming peer," with gentle eyes and long white beard, is an Irishman from the banks of the Shannon, where at the age of sixteen, fifty-four years ago, he succeeded to his grandfather's title. He was then a schoolboy at Harrow. On the outbreak of the World War he attained his majority he went to live at Foyne's, the family estate of about 7,000 acres in the County of Limerick. To a young man brought up in the aristocratic atmosphere of a great English public school the responsibility of governing the lives and fortunes of hundreds of peasants was almost staggering. But boy as he was, he immediately took his position seriously and proceeded to make good his obligations. This meant that he immediately he was called upon to choose between his own family fortune and the future and well-being of his tenants. Those were the days of the land trouble in Ireland and it is significant that the young peer was the first to support Gladstone's land acts of 1886. He supported and put them into immediate practice, with the result that he gave 4,000 acres to his tenants at once; this was presently followed by the sale of all his farm lands in small holdings to peasant farmers on terms exceedingly advantageous to them. ALSO HITS PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

Advocates of Catholic education and of the parochial schools are sometimes tempted to believe that opposition to these schools is confined to uninformed "radicals" and the type of American response to the readers of the Menace and similar sheets. They forget that exponents of Masonry, which professedly appeals to men of intelligence, have time and again voiced their opposition to Catholic schools and have used their own official organs for the purpose. Yet it is only three months since the New Age Magazine, published at Washington, D. C., as the official organ "of the Supreme Council of the Thirty-third Degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of America," and "owned and published" by that body, printed a series of editorial notes dealing with the schools in a manner evidencing outright hostility. One of the articles was entitled "A Crying Need," the burden of it being the demand that all children of school age be obliged by law to attend public schools "at least five hours every day for at least five days in the week during the school term." Another article argued the necessity of "arousing interest in the public schools," stating that they are "the veritable backbone of the Republic and the foundation of American citizenship," and urging the granting of Federal aid to the schools, in harmony with the dangerous Smith-Town proposal. And a third editorial expression, treating the question: "Is the Parochial School the Place for Patriotism?" answered this query in a negative way, thus adding one more serious charge to a series of accusations calculated to arouse and encourage hostility to the parochial schools. Lest the reader be tempted to assume that the Masonic publication quoted is merely an exception to the rule, let him note another statement gleaned from a Masonic source pertaining to schools, and representing a resolution adopted by a Masonic body. The August issue of the Builder, "a journal for the Masonic student," published monthly at Anamosa, Iowa, by the National Masonic Research Society, reproduces a "Report of Committee on Patriotic Services of the Grand Lodge of North Dakota," this report having been adopted by the Grand Lodge of that State on July 17, 1920. The second of the "proposition" to the "promulgation" of which the Grand Lodge was urged "to commit itself" and to which it did commit itself, read: "That 'this Government is based upon a loyal and intelligent citizenship, and therefore it must control the agencies which train that citizenship, i. e., the elementary public school.'"

The sense in which this statement is regarded by the proponents of the resolution is evident from the following equally significant declaration: "Third, we much prefer the elimination of the private and parochial schools since the one makes for class distinction and the other for religious intolerance; but if such elimination is found inexpedient at this time, we recommend that such schools be under close supervision of the public school officials of the State and nation, and that they be required to maintain the same standards required of the public schools."

There can be no misunderstanding of the purpose of these statements. Hostility towards the parochial schools in particular has been more open during the past few years than it had been for a decade or more past. It behooves the rank and file of the Catholic laity as well as their leaders to be on guard.

PICNIC AND CHICKEN SUPPER.
At the meeting this week the committees in charge of the St. Agnes church picnic and chicken supper, to be given on Wednesday, September 1, reported on their work, plans being under way to entertain a large crowd and in a better manner than ever before. The ladies will serve an old fashioned country supper, consisting of chicken and other good things too numerous to mention, and the workers are leaving nothing undone to provide a general good time for all. Trucks will meet the Bards-town cars at Deer Park avenue.

PREPOSTEROUS.
Proposals by Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons on Monday that every facility would be given the mother of Archbishop Mannix of Australia to come to London from Ireland to visit her son, were denounced as "preposterous" by the prelate in an interview with the Daily Mail. The Archbishop said his mother could not possibly travel, owing to her great age, no matter how much assistance should be given her. The prelate denied rumors that he had been summoned to Rome and said he adhered to his original intention to go to Rome at about Christmas time.

TORY JOURNALISM.

The Courier-Journal has been exhibiting its Tory and pro-English attitude for some time past, but in a cartoon Tuesday displayed the real venom and feeling which characterizes the sentiment of the Bingham press. The foul and libelous cartoon has aroused widespread indignation among people of Irish extraction and this latest insult should not be allowed to go by unnoticed. The cartoon portrayed Lloyd George as the noble and heroic carrier of England's burdens, and while his hands were full he was being attacked by two rabid curs, the dogs being labeled "Sinn Feinism" and "Sovietism." The Courier-Journal Tories know full well that Sinn Feinism represents 80 per cent. of the men and women of Ireland who are fighting for their freedom and liberty and suffering persecution and imprisonment just as our American forefathers of 1776, and furthermore they are fighting the same cruel oppressor. And just as American freedom was opposed by Tories and pro-English in Revolutionary days, so is Irish freedom and independence opposed by Tories of the Courier-Journal stripe. For this insult to honest Irishmen and their descendants we may expect dear King George to bestow on Friend Bobby the Order of the Garter, bah jove, or at least make him a Knight of the Bath.

WHITEWASH CRIMINALS.

Those who imagine that the new coercion bill which Lloyd George has introduced in Parliament was necessary to meet the situation in Ireland are certainly not up to the ways of British ministers. The bill in reality is a whitewashing measure pure and simple—a measure designed solely to protect the hired assassins of the Government from the odium that attaches to their deeds of blood and outrage. Coroners' juries, it is well known, do not hesitate to charge willful murder against the constabulary and military when the evidence warrants it, and to publish their findings broadcast, thus holding up the British Government to the contempt of mankind. The new bill will take all such cases out of their hands; a military court will be substituted and a clean bill of moral health is what may be expected for all uniformed criminals. This will be the military court's duty. For the rest the bill proposes nothing that has not been tried already and proven a flat failure. Should the new bill become a law we can look for a tremendous increase in the murder and outrage business of the military and police.

TORY FAIR PLAY.

The debate on the third reading of the new coercion bill in Parliament was one of the most acrimonious that has been heard in the House in many years. Joe Devlin was, of course, in the forefront of the fight and was expelled from the House. The incident shows, as nothing else could, the kind of fair play that Ireland can expect from Lloyd George and his Tory supporters when even those who cling to constitutional agitation and fight their corner in the manner Lloyd George approves are denied a hearing. The Sinn Feiners are denounced because they do not enter a House where constitutional action is met by unconstitutional suppression, and where an attempt to voice the feelings of their constituents on a matter concerning their welfare would be rewarded by expulsion. In view of what has occurred in Joe Devlin's case, will anyone dare to say that the Sinn Feiners are wrong in refusing to enter Parliament?

MISREPRESENTATIONS.

To press representatives who saw President De Valera with reference to the London dispatches suggesting that sums of $500,000 and $1,000,000 were voted by the Irish Congress to be used by him during the Presidential campaign and to secure official recognition of the Irish Republic by the Government of the United States, he made the following statement:

"The sinister interpretation which it is sought to place on the vote, if genuine, is but another illustration of British methods. To speak of these allocations as a political fund to be used in the Presidential campaign, so as to create the impression that they were to be used for partisan purposes, that is, to further the interests of any particular candidate or party, is a misrepresentation. Whether those allocations were actually made or not. In public and in private I have been scrupulously careful to avoid even appearing to take sides in the party politics of this country. Apart from any possible illegality, it would obviously be bad taste on my part and most inexpedient."

BONEFACED AND INSULTING.

Editor Kentucky Irish American: The outrageous Lloyd George cartoon in Tuesday's issue of the Courier-Journal is such a bonefaced insulting fling at Ireland's effort for self-government, and such an open avowal of the publisher's complete sympathy with the British monarchy and its present tyrannous military policy in Ireland that it calls for the most instant and indignant condemnation upon the part of every man and woman of Irish blood and lineage and every lover of liberty and justice in this country.

Mr. Bingham should be invited to retire from this commonplace Republic and imitate that other American Tory, Astor, by becoming a subject of that British monarchy which he evidently loves and admires much more than this free republic. The man who will defend the worse than Hunnish atrocities perpetrated by British royalist troops in Ireland today would also defend the massacre of Wyoming or the Rashtin, and is unfit to remain a citizen of a free community.

KNIGHTS FOR FREEDOM.

Secretary of State Colby, the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House have been sent copies of drastic resolutions passed by the Supreme Officers of the Knights of Columbus urging recognition of the Republic of Ireland.

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, of Boston, who is Supreme Advocate of the order, drafted the resolutions, whose closing statement announced that the Knights as a body placed on record their recognition of the Irish Republic, as represented by its President, Eamonn de Valera, and pledged their efforts to the end that "the United States may without delay also recognize the Republic of Ireland." The Knights give formal credence to the statements of the Chief Executive of the Irish Republic and cite de Valera's indictment of the British regime in Ireland as "how little more than a system of licensing the shooting up of peaceful towns and villages and the murder of unarmed Irish citizens by roving bands of irresponsible British military marauders." After a reference to the bombing and burning of Irish towns and raids on 20,000 Irish homes by the British, note is taken of the "duly elected government of the Republic of Ireland, a government that is entitled to rule by democratic right and is in fact ruling through the greater part of the country, functioning in every branch that affects the civil life of the people."

The Knights have also endorsed in this resolution the stand that to continue to give recognition to the present British regime in Ireland, "a regime of alien frightfulness," while denying it to the people's elected government, is an unfriendly act by America to the people of a small nation that has never done America any wrong. The United States, declares the Knights, in according recognition to the British regime is continuing to give its adherence to the doctrine that "might makes right," and the denial of recognition to the elected government of the Irish Republic is an abandonment of the noblest ideal for which many lives were sacrificed in the recent war.
